THE EFFECT OF VARIOUS FACTORS ON THE RATE OF HEALING OF WOUNDS

By J. H. HARRIS, M.D., and J. W. HARRIS, M.D.
From the Department of Surgery, University of Chicago, Chicago, Ill.

The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of various factors on the rate of healing of wounds. The factors studied were temperature, humidity, and the presence of bacteria. The results showed that the rate of healing was increased by a temperature of 37°C. and a humidity of 100%. The presence of bacteria had no effect on the rate of healing.

The following table shows the results of the study:

Factor	Rate of Healing
Temperature 37°C.	Increased
Humidity 100%	Increased
Presence of bacteria	No effect

The results of this study are of importance in the treatment of wounds. It is recommended that wounds be kept at a temperature of 37°C. and a humidity of 100% to promote healing. The presence of bacteria should not be a factor in the treatment of wounds.

The authors wish to thank the following for their assistance in this study: J. H. HARRIS, M.D., and J. W. HARRIS, M.D.

1. Introduction

The purpose of this report is to provide a detailed analysis of the data collected during the field study. The study was conducted over a period of six months, from January to June 2010.

The data was collected from a series of interviews with participants, as well as from a series of observations of their behavior.

The data was then analyzed using a series of statistical tests, and the results of these tests are presented in the following sections.

The first section of the report provides a detailed description of the data collection process, including the methods used to recruit participants and the procedures used to collect the data.

The second section of the report provides a detailed description of the data analysis process, including the statistical tests used and the results of these tests.

The third section of the report provides a detailed description of the results of the data analysis, including the findings of the statistical tests and the conclusions drawn from these findings.

The fourth section of the report provides a detailed description of the implications of the findings for practice, including the implications for the design of the intervention and the implications for the evaluation of the intervention.

The fifth section of the report provides a detailed description of the limitations of the study, including the limitations of the data collection process and the limitations of the data analysis process.

The sixth section of the report provides a detailed description of the conclusions of the study, including the conclusions drawn from the findings and the recommendations for future research.

The seventh section of the report provides a detailed description of the references used in the study, including the references to the literature and the references to the data collection process.

The eighth section of the report provides a detailed description of the appendices, including the appendices to the data collection process and the appendices to the data analysis process.

The ninth section of the report provides a detailed description of the glossary, including the definitions of the terms used in the report.

The tenth section of the report provides a detailed description of the index, including the index of the report and the index of the data collection process.

The eleventh section of the report provides a detailed description of the acknowledgments, including the acknowledgments to the participants and the acknowledgments to the funding body.

The twelfth section of the report provides a detailed description of the conclusions, including the conclusions drawn from the findings and the recommendations for future research.

General Statement of the Case

1. The patient is a male, aged 45 years, who has been suffering from a chronic illness of the lungs for many years. The illness is characterized by a persistent cough, which is often accompanied by the expectoration of sputum. The cough is usually worse in the morning and after exposure to cold air. The sputum is usually thin and watery, but may become thicker and more purulent at times. The patient also experiences shortness of breath, especially on exertion, and has noticed a gradual loss of weight and strength over the years.

2. The patient's medical history is significant for a long-standing diagnosis of chronic bronchitis, which has progressed to the point of emphysema. He has also been treated for several episodes of acute bronchitis and pneumonia. There is no history of tuberculosis or other infectious diseases of the respiratory system. The patient has a long history of smoking, which is considered a major contributing factor to his condition.

3. The patient's physical examination reveals a thin, emaciated man with a barrel-shaped chest and hyperinflation of the lungs. The heart is displaced upward and to the left, and the liver is enlarged. The lungs are hyperinflated, with decreased tactile freckles and hyperresonance on percussion. The breath sounds are decreased, and there is a prolonged expiration. The patient has a persistent cough and expectorates sputum. The sputum is usually thin and watery, but may become thicker and more purulent at times.

4. The patient's laboratory studies, including a complete blood count and a chest X-ray, are consistent with the clinical findings. The chest X-ray shows hyperinflation of the lungs, with a flattened diaphragm and a narrow, vertical heart shadow. There is no evidence of acute infection or other pathology. The patient's laboratory studies also show a normal hemoglobin level, but a slightly elevated white blood cell count, which is consistent with a chronic inflammatory process.

5. The patient's condition is considered to be a chronic, progressive disease of the lungs, which is likely to continue to worsen over time. The patient's symptoms are consistent with the clinical findings, and the laboratory studies support the diagnosis. The patient's condition is considered to be a chronic, progressive disease of the lungs, which is likely to continue to worsen over time.

1. The first part of the document is a list of names and addresses, which are arranged in a columnar fashion. The names are written in a cursive script, and the addresses are written in a more formal, printed style. The list includes names such as "John Doe", "Jane Smith", and "Robert Brown", along with their respective addresses.

2. The second part of the document is a series of short, handwritten notes or entries. These notes are written in a cursive script and are arranged in a columnar fashion, similar to the first part. The notes appear to be a continuation of the information provided in the first part, or they may be separate entries related to the same topic.

3. The third part of the document is a series of short, handwritten notes or entries. These notes are written in a cursive script and are arranged in a columnar fashion, similar to the first part. The notes appear to be a continuation of the information provided in the first part, or they may be separate entries related to the same topic.

4. The fourth part of the document is a series of short, handwritten notes or entries. These notes are written in a cursive script and are arranged in a columnar fashion, similar to the first part. The notes appear to be a continuation of the information provided in the first part, or they may be separate entries related to the same topic.

5. The fifth part of the document is a series of short, handwritten notes or entries. These notes are written in a cursive script and are arranged in a columnar fashion, similar to the first part. The notes appear to be a continuation of the information provided in the first part, or they may be separate entries related to the same topic.

Chapter I
The Discovery of America
The first discovery of America was made by Christopher Columbus in 1492. He was an Italian explorer who sailed for Spain. He discovered the New World, which is now called America.

Chapter II
The First Settlements
The first settlements in America were made by the Spanish. They came to America in 1492. They found a new world, which was full of gold and silver. They wanted to take it all for themselves. They did not care for the people who lived there.

Chapter III
The Growth of the Colonies
The colonies grew and grew. They became more and more like the mother country. They had their own laws and customs. They had their own money and trade. They were becoming more and more independent.

Chapter IV
The American Revolution
The American Revolution was a war between the colonies and the mother country. The colonies wanted to be free. They wanted to have their own government. They fought a war for seven years. They won. They became a free and independent nation.

1. The first group of people who are likely to be affected by the new law are those who are currently in the process of being deported. This group includes individuals who have been convicted of a crime and are currently in custody, as well as those who have been convicted of a crime and are currently on parole or probation. The new law will require that these individuals be deported to their home countries, regardless of whether they are currently in the process of being deported or not.

1. The first part of the paper is devoted to a general discussion of the problem. It is shown that the problem is of great importance in the theory of differential equations.

2. In the second part, we consider the case of a linear differential equation. It is shown that the problem is solvable in this case.

3. In the third part, we consider the case of a nonlinear differential equation. It is shown that the problem is solvable in this case.

4. In the fourth part, we consider the case of a system of differential equations. It is shown that the problem is solvable in this case.

5. In the fifth part, we consider the case of a partial differential equation. It is shown that the problem is solvable in this case.

6. In the sixth part, we consider the case of a boundary value problem. It is shown that the problem is solvable in this case.

4. Nationality.

The four branches of the Norlie-Bonhus tribe all came from Norway and, though they had a slight admixture of Danish, Swedish, German and English, they are counted here as pure Norwegians. But the tribe has through inter-marriages and otherwise become considerably mixed. It is very difficult to give correct figures for this racial intermixture for so many did not report at all, while some did not give complete and accurate reports, and many contradictory reports were made by various members of the same family. About 53 per cent can be said to be of one race, of whom 41 per cent of the total (610 persons) are full-blooded Norwegians. About 4 per cent are 75% pure Norwegian, or German, or something else. Over one-third are half-breeds. In all 23 races are represented. In the table below those in the first column are full-blooded, while those in the second column have only some of the strain. Thus, 610 are all Norwegian, 523 are only partly Norwegian, totaling 1133 for the Norwegian group.

5. Siblings.

(N.B. By siblings is meant brothers and sisters. Each one was asked to name his brothers and sisters, with date of birth, place, married name of girls. This seemed to be the hardest question to answer. Many did not know how many siblings they had, could not give their complete name, could not remember when they were born, forgot to state where they lived, etc. What little information was gathered, will no doubt be considered very valuable.)

There were 141 who failed to tell how many siblings there were in their families. In the families of the 1338 that reported the average number of siblings was 5 (five). The number of children per family under this rubric ranged from 1 to 17, as follows:

9. Burials.

1585.

It would be proper here to make a list of the places where the folks died, and the cemeteries at which they were laid to rest, as recorded in the various sketches. In most cases this information is given. The following were killed on the battlefield:

Perry Elliott Bangerter, p.58,
William Robert Ewing, p.318,
Melvin Ray O'Brien, p.1071.

Arthur Le Roy Hepburn, and perhaps others, too, died post-war due to ill-health brought on while in the service.

10. Obituaries.

The country newspapers perform an invaluable service by writing up the local people, young and old, when they die. Almost every person at his death is given a fine and factual obituary memorial. Unfortunately, those who sent in the reports for this book did not all take the time and trouble to look up these records of their dear departed folks. Only about one fourth of records are here reported. In some future revision perhaps this item will be carefully edited.

11. Church Membership.

(1) Many Sects.

The Norlies, Juels, Bonhuses and Julsruds(Larsons) came to this country from Norway, which is a Lutheran country, and they were all members of the Lutheran Church at the time of their arrival. The Norlies and Juels soon became affiliated with the Norwegian Lutherans here known as the Norwegian Augustana Synod, the Bonhuses likewise with the Norwegian Lutheran Synod, the Larsons joined the Methodists, who had begun to do mission work among the Norwegian Lutherans. Except in a few cases, through marriage with some Lutheran, the Larsons have not gone back to the Lutheran fold. Mixed marriages, that is, marriages between people of different races and creeds, set up many sects within a family group such as the Norlie-Bonhus, as is shown from the following tabulation of the churches the Norlie-Bonhus tribe belongs to:

| No. | Sect | Membership | No. | Sect | Membership |
|-----|---------------------|------------|-----|-------------------------|------------|
| 1 | Adventist | 2 | 9 | Protestant Episcopal | 22 |
| 2 | Baptist | 33 | 10 | Quaker | 7 |
| 3 | Christian | 23 | 11 | Roman Catholic | 57 |
| 4 | Christian Science | 12 | 12 | United Brethren | 8 |
| 5 | Congregational | 52 | 13 | United Church of Canada | 6 |
| 6 | Lutheran | 777 | 14 | Salvation Army | 2 |

| 8 | Prebyterian | 50 | | Approximate Unchurched | 283 19% |
| | | | | | 100% |

(2) Sectarian Movements.

Due to the fact that the information recorded on the questionnaires is so meager and indefinite on this point, a true statement of the joining up with this sect or that can not be made. This much has been gleaned:

| From Lutheran to Some Other No. | From Some Other Body to Lutheran No. |
|---------------------------------|--------------------------------------|
| 1. To Baptist 5 | 1. From Baptist 0 |
| 2. To Christian Church 1 | 2. From Christian Church 0 |
| 3. To Christian Science 1 | 3. From Christian Science 0 |

| 9. To Salvation Army 2 | 9. From Salvation Army 0 |
| 10. To United Church Canada 1 | 10. From United Church Canada 0 |

It will be noted that the first of the three items is the most important, and the last is the least important.

The second item is the most important, and the last is the least important.

The third item is the most important, and the last is the least important.

The fourth item is the most important, and the last is the least important.

The fifth item is the most important, and the last is the least important.

12. Education.

The literacy of Norway, like that of Sweden and Denmark, is the highest in the world. Less than one per cent of the population of school age is illiterate. Only the idiots can not read and write. Naturally the Norlie-Bonhus folks have eagerly supported schools and trained their young the way they should go. The schedules as filled do not begin to show how much the parents and children have gone to school and how far. With but few exceptions they all had a common school education, supplemented in many cases by parochial schools, confirmation instruction, etc. At least 50 % of those reporting had attended church academies or public high schools. Some 17% had studied at college, and some had continued on in graduate schools. At least 15 % had taken up professional study, such as, the ministry, law, medicine, teaching, nursing, business, etc. It would be interesting to have a complete record, properly classified of the education on each level, but this summary will be limited only to the academic and professional.

13. Occupations.

(N.B. Most of the Norwegians who came to the United States in the nineteenth century settled down on government land as farmers. Such was the case also with the Norlies and Juels and the Bonhuses and Julsruds (Larsons) of this story. But gradually they took on other occupations too, as can be seen from the following table based on 617 replies. The classification of occupations is in the main that of the U.S. Census for 1910. The Census sets up nine main classes. It includes Fishing and Forestry under Agriculture. So be it then. In the following set-up Communication has been made a tenth main class.

14. Places of Residence.

1601.

A list of the addresses of the members of the book was given on pp. 1485-1496, as of 1948. There have been a number of changes of address since that list was made. Now, to give a catalog of all the places these people have lived at, that would take much space. By way of example, take one family consisting of parents and six children, and note how many states each one has lived in, not to mention how many towns in each state:

1. Father: Ia., S.D., Minn., Ill., Wis., Alta., N.Y., Wash.—8.
2. Wife: Minn., Wis., Ia., N.Y., N.D.—5.
3. Son: Wis., Minn., Ia., Ore., Cal., Wash., Ill. --7.
4. Son: Minn., Ia., Mont., S.D., France, Madagascar—6.
5. Daughter: Minn., Ia., N.Y., N.D., Wash.—5.
6. Daughter: Minn.—1.
7. Daughter: Minn., Ia., N.Y., Mont.—4. N.D., S.D.,
8. Daughter: Minn., Ia., N.Y., Wis., Mass.,/Wash., France, Madagascar—10.

This makes a total of 12 states and three foreign lands for this family, distributed among them as follows:

| | | | |
|--------------------|---|---------------------|----|
| 1. California -- | 1 | 9. Oregon -- | 1 |
| 2. Illinois -- | 2 | 10. South Dakota -- | 3 |
| 3. Iowa -- | 7 | 11. Washington -- | 4 |
| 4. Massachusetts-- | 1 | 12. Wisconsin -- | 4 |
| 5. Minnesota -- | 8 | 13. Alberta -- | 1 |
| 6. Montana -- | 2 | 14. France -- | 2 |
| 7. New York -- | 5 | 15. Madagascar -- | 2 |
| 8. North Dakota -- | 3 | Total -- | 46 |

15. War Record.

(N.B. 37 out of 129 is almost 30 per cent. Maybe the rest were privates. An army must have privates too as well as officers. Three were killed.)

16. Other Labors.

(N.B. This topic on the questionnaire was overlooked or ignored by most of of the folks. About 12 per cent have made some remarks bearing on the question, and they make interesting reading. Just one line to each person:)

The history of the world is a subject of great interest and importance. It is a subject which has attracted the attention of men of all ages and of all nations. The history of the world is a subject which has been the subject of many different theories and opinions. Some have thought of it as a series of events, while others have thought of it as a process. Some have thought of it as a story, while others have thought of it as a science. The history of the world is a subject which has been the subject of many different theories and opinions. IV. Corrections And Additions.

(N.B. The material for this book has been slowly gathered over many months. It has been typed on a stencil as soon as possible after having been received. The various reports from members of the same family may be months apart and may conflict on many points. These things come to light usually later, after the material has been typed. There has been little time for proofreading. Many things have happened since the copy came in, and many things should be added to some of the sketches. They all should be revised and made more complete.)

(The owners of the book should transfer these corrections to their proper places. They should, of course, in the first place, put in the page numbers.)

2. Additions.

(N.B. Where several additions have been sent in, the pages have been rewritten. The list of additions is therefore small. But since the compiler is writing the book especially for his children and grandchildren, he will add a little about himself under the topics 16, 17 and 18, thus breaking the rule that each one should have only a page. Here, then, are some few additions:)

(2) Associations.

(N.B. Our day does much of its work through associations of various sorts, promoting this or that cause. Members join voluntarily. They give of time and money, and they get something in return, perhaps more than they give. Norlie has belonged to a great variety of these societies, though never to any secret lodge, and, while striving to avoid it, he has held office in about 130 organizations. Out of some 400 societies the following is taken.)

(N.B. The abbreviations are as follows: C means Celtic (Irish, Scotch or Welsh), G stands for Greek, H for Hebrew, L for Latin, T for Teutonic (as Anglo-Saxon, German, Norwegian). These 62 names have come from five main sources:

| Language Source | Males | Females | Total | Per Cent |
|-----------------|-------|---------|-------|----------|
| Celtic | 3 | 0 | 3 | 5 |
| Greek | 4 | 9 | 13 | 21 |
| Hebrew | 5 | 11 | 16 | 25 |
| Latin | 3 | 6 | 9 | 15 |
| Teutonic | 16 | 5 | 21 | 34 |
| Total | 31 | 31 | 62 | 100 |

How it happened that we got so much from H.G. and L.

Hebrew was the language of the Old Testament.
 Greek was the language of the New Testament.
 Latin was the language of Rome and its colonies and the Church.
 The Teutonic and Celtic languages were spoken by the common people.

(7) Meaning of Names.

(N.B. Every name has a linguistic origin and an original meaning. Many have associational meanings too. which add to their popularity. Thus, Mary in its Hebrew original, Miriam, meant bitter, but it was the name of the mother of Jesus, and will always be a beloved name. It occurs in many forms and combinations, as, Mari, Marie, Maria, Marian, Marion, Maja, etc. A few names are listed here taken from the immediate Norlie-Bonhus family. Note that, instead of writing T for Teutonic words, these words have been assigned to one or the other of the Teutonic tongues, although they are current, more or less, in the others. Thus, Carl is said to be a German word, meaning man, but it is just as much a Danish, or Norwegian or Swedish word. Olaf, on the other hand, is more of a Norwegian word. Each one can look up the meaning of his own name.)

(N.B. In the above D stands for Danish, N for Norwegian, S for Swedish, Fr for French, Ge for German, AS for Anglo-Saxon, and W for Welsh. All of these are Teutonic except French and Welsh. Now, by turning back to P. 1624, we find that the most common names were Latin, Greek and Hebrew on the one hand, and from the Teutonic and Celtic on the other. Reducing them to the same form, these two lists compare as follows:

a. Figures.

| | Hebrew | Greek | Latin | Teutonic | Celtic | Total |

(N.B. The sketches are arranged alphabetically, with the exception of a few that came in late. The sketches were written as they were coming in, on account of which it was impossible to give them page numbers at the time. Those who get possession of this book should write in the pages, following the paging set up by this Index. Note that married women are listed under their last married name, if married more than once. Their maiden name is also given in this Index, with the same paging as their married name.)

1. The first part of the book is devoted to a general introduction to the subject of the history of the English language. It discusses the various factors which have influenced the development of the language, such as the contact with other languages, the internal changes which have taken place, and the influence of the social and political conditions of the time.

2. The second part of the book is devoted to a detailed study of the history of the English language from the beginning of the 15th century to the present day. It discusses the various stages of the language, from the Old English of the 11th century to the Middle English of the 15th century, and from the Early Modern English of the 16th century to the Modern English of the 18th century, and finally to the Contemporary English of the 19th and 20th centuries.

3. The third part of the book is devoted to a study of the various dialects of the English language, and to the influence of these dialects on the development of the standard language. It discusses the various regional dialects, such as the Scottish Gaelic, the Welsh, and the Irish, and the various social dialects, such as the Cockney and the Estuary English.

4. The fourth part of the book is devoted to a study of the various literary works which have been written in the English language, and to the influence of these works on the development of the language. It discusses the various literary movements, such as the Renaissance, the Romanticism, and the Victorianism, and the various literary figures, such as Shakespeare, Milton, and Wordsworth.

5. The fifth part of the book is devoted to a study of the various grammatical and syntactical features of the English language, and to the influence of these features on the development of the language. It discusses the various parts of speech, such as the nouns, the verbs, and the adjectives, and the various grammatical constructions, such as the simple sentence and the complex sentence.

6. The sixth part of the book is devoted to a study of the various phonetic and orthographic features of the English language, and to the influence of these features on the development of the language. It discusses the various sounds, such as the vowels and the consonants, and the various letters, such as the capital letters and the small letters.

7. The seventh part of the book is devoted to a study of the various lexicographical features of the English language, and to the influence of these features on the development of the language. It discusses the various words, such as the proper nouns and the common nouns, and the various meanings of these words.

8. The eighth part of the book is devoted to a study of the various stylistic features of the English language, and to the influence of these features on the development of the language. It discusses the various styles, such as the formal style and the informal style, and the various rhetorical devices, such as the metaphor and the simile.

9. The ninth part of the book is devoted to a study of the various sociolinguistic features of the English language, and to the influence of these features on the development of the language. It discusses the various social and cultural factors which have influenced the development of the language, such as the class system and the religious beliefs.

10. The tenth part of the book is devoted to a study of the various future prospects of the English language, and to the influence of these prospects on the development of the language. It discusses the various predictions of the future of the language, such as the increasing use of the language in the world and the increasing influence of the language on other languages.
